HALE'S HONEY OF

"Nothing without Labour."

HOREHOUND & TAR

☞ Invariably Cures Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and all Affections of the Breathing Organs.

Its soothing influence upon the irritated air passages is due to the fact that its ingredients are the most efficacious pulmonics known, the basis of the article being the honey of the horehound plant, chemically united with the Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. There are besides five other botanic elements which give additional efficacy.

Those who have used it say that Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar is wonderfully remedial in all cases where the organs of respiration are affected, and that its action is unusually rapid. It contains nothing that can disorder the stomach; it has an extremely agreeable flavor, and is sold at a figure which enables those of the most limited means to avail themselves of its virtues.

Children derive great benefit from its soothing properties when suffering with Croup and Whooping Cough.

Coming to Light.

LEWISTON, ME., May 5.—A skull, believed to be the missing head of Mrs. Lizzie Lowell, has been found in this city near the Switzerland road. The headless skeleton identified as Mrs. Lowell was found near the same spot seven years ago, and her husband, James Lowell, convicted of murdering her, is now in the State's Prison. A reward for the discovery of the head was offered at the trial.

WAR.

Garfield Inaugurates an Aggressive Fight Against Conkling.

The New York Nominations—Chinese Treaty Adopted by the Senate—Capital News.

Excitement.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—There was terrible excitement about the capitol this afternoon over the report that the President's message withdrew Robertson. The Senate was in executive session and not a word could be learned for some time. The first information obtained was that all the New York nominations except Robertson were withdrawn. A reporter of the Western Associated Press soon learned that the message withdrew the Conkling nominations for District Attorneys and Marshals. The message is an open declaration of war on the part of the President against Con Kling. Last night the President had a consultation with some friends and determined upon making an aggressive fight and he arranged it to-day. He intends to keep it up and to use every effort to confirm Robertson. There were five withdrawals altogether but as the Senate is still in executive session the fifth cannot yet be ascertained.

ADOPTED.

The Chinese treaty to restrict immigration was adopted this afternoon, only four votes being cast against it. Burnside and Hawley spoke in its support.

Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Senate soon after going into executive session confirmed the following nominations: William Walter Phelps, New Jersey, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Austria; Cortz Fessenden, of Romeo, Mich., U. S. Surveyor General for Dakota; Richard W. Montgomery, Receiver of Public Moneys, Bloomington, Neb., and Selden M. Bronson, Postmaster, Menesha, Wis.

Consideration of the Chinese immigration treaty was then resumed, Senator Miller continuing the argument in favor of ratification.

Going for Conkling.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A Western Associated Press reporter has learned definitely that an important communication sent to the Senate this afternoon contained the withdrawal of the nominations of New York District Attorneys and Marshals, and that Robertson's name was not in it. Woodford and Payne, for Attorney and Marshal of the Southern New York District and McDougal and Tenny for the Northern district were withdrawn. In the message the President stated that Robertson was not withdrawn.

The Message and Withdrawals.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The message is simply a formal message of withdrawal, containing no explanation or comments. The nominations withdrawn are as follows: Stewart L. Woodford, United States Attorney for Southern District; Lisa W. Tenny, United States Attorney Eastern District; Lewis F. Payne, United States Marshall Southern District; Clinton McDougall, United States Marshal, Northern District; Jno. B. Taylor, Collector Customs District, Buffalo, New York.

The Executive Session.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Senate in executive session acted upon several nominations which were reported from the committees and then took up the Chinese treaty. Senator Farley first made a speech in favor of the treaty and against Chinese immigration, and was followed by Senator Miller on the same subject. A discussion on the Chinese treaty will prolong its consideration, and may not reach final action before Saturday.

War to the Knife.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The President has sent a message to the Senate withdrawing the New York nominations for U. S. Marshals and District Attorneys. The nomination of Judge Robertson for Collector of Customs is not withdrawn.

XLVII. CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Immediately after the reading of yesterday's journal the Senate went into executive session.

GROWING CRITICAL.

A Thirty-Foot Hole Through Which the Water is Pouring.

The Situation Along the Levee Causing Serious Losses.

East St. Louis Anxiously Waiting for the Waters to Recede.

The Submerged Districts in Carondelet—East Carondelet—Summary—Notes and Incidents.

At a point opposite Nameoki, between Venice and Mitchell, about eight miles above East St. Louis, the levee which begins about Venice and runs up to the Madison dyke broke just before noon. The last account says the breach is thirty feet broad and the current is running through about eighteen feet deep. To the east of this levee is the Chicago and Alton and the Wabash tracks. The water has not yet overflowed the Chicago and Alton track, and so far all the water is passing down on the west side of this track, so that the bottom is in no imminent danger. The water, however, may overflow the C. and A. track or wash it away, and in that case the whole bottom would be inundated. The C. and A. has sent up a large extra force of men to the track to watch it and repair it if it shows signs of yielding. This portion is very critical.

The break occurred at Ebenezer, a point on the levee between the Madison dyke and the levee opposite Mamioka. It was not expected that this barrier would give, and all attention was centered on the Madison dyke. When the break at Ebenezer was discovered only a few men were available and they were without shovels, barrows or earth. A large force of men were brought to the spot in the course of an hour and the work of repairing the breach began. If the farmers do not succeed in cutting it off at this point they will be able to stop it at Long Lake at all events. There is little or no chance that it will cross the C. and A. tracks, even if the work of stopping the water does not progress as well as they anticipate. The C. and A. embankment at this point is fully 3½ feet above the level that the water passing through this break would reach were it not dammed up before it passed Long Lake. In any event the damage so far is not great, though there are several well sown fields of wheat west of the lake.

The people of Venice are thoroughly alarmed and are preparing to leave their homes.

THE RIVER.

The river continues to outcrawl its banks and is gradually reclaiming all the property along the levee. A rise of one and a half inches was recorded during the night, and this morning the water was steadily creeping onward and upward. Those who watched it most closely claimed that it was rising slower than yesterday, but the wish was father to the thought, and the records give no reason for entertaining it. Along the river front the water has full sway. Most of the store owners in the vicinity of the bridge have deserted the ground floors and many of them are carrying on their business in the second story, with an approach from Commercial alley. The streets leading to the levee are crowded with teams, carrying freight. The approach to the wharfboats around the bridge is made through nearly four feet of water. Further south, below Market street, where the bank is higher, the water has not yet reached the doors, but is gradually working in that direction. In the neighborhood of Anna, Carroll and Lesperance streets, and in the southern portion of the city generally, the flood is causing great havoc, the various manufactories in the vicinity being entirely at the mercy of the river.

In North St. Louis the situation remains unchanged, the lumber fields being all submerged and the Water Works in a precarious situation. East St. Louis is still in the throes of expectation. The rains of last night are a severe attack on the Madison dyke, and if this goes East St. Louis will be likely to go after it. The people are very much excited, but many of them think it the best policy to belittle the danger, and are living close up to this policy. The scene along the levee this morning was remarkable. Skiffs plowed up and down within a few feet of the line of buildings. Wagons splashed along, the horses breast high in water. Occasional balks took place, and in several instances teamsters waded out into water waist deep to attend to refractory animals. Business is almost suspended, the only subject thought about being the probabilities and possibilities of to-morrow. A fringe of spectators lines every street leading to the levee, the lookers on being extremely numerous. The bridge is the fashionable promenade to-day. Both sides of the railing are crowded across the whole length with men, women and children. Every down town car brings in loads of young ladies from the north and west ends and Stoddard Addition, the objective point of the procession being the bridge. The view from this structure is perfect, sweeping the river from away above Venice down to Carondelet. The question of all importance this morning was when will the raise cease? The question is hard to answer. The Signal Service this morning reports a general fall in the Upper Mississippi and further down the line. A rise of eight inches is reported from Dubuque, but this will be met by the Mississippi fall about the mouth of the Missouri, which will modify it considerably. The Osage has fallen considerably since Sunday. At Hermann the river had fallen 3 inches between 10 p. m. yesterday and 10 a. m. to day. This is a good indication. On the other hand, the morning Signal Service reports record a rise in temperature and a fall in the barometer throughout the North and Northwest. This means rain, and the future situation depends upon this northern rain. If it be continuous and heavy, then a regular boom, an early June rise and a repetition of the scenes of '44 may be looked for. It only a drizzle sets in the chances are that a fall will soon occur. The barometer is falling in the extreme Northwest, which fact proves this latter probability. If no thaw occurs in the north, a fall is expected to set in at this point before to-morrow night.

The following diagram shows the relative heights of the floods since the great one of 1844. It is taken from a gauge kept in a pillar at Ward & Brady's store, 517 North Levee. The heavy line marks the level of the ground floor, which is the same as the sidewalk elevation of the levee at this point. The figures above this line, indicate the heights of the different high waters. Just below is the mark for 1876, and further down the zero point on the Government guage which is now under water:

1844	8 feet above levee.
1858	3 feet 6 in. above levee.
1851	3 feet 4 in. above levee.
1881	4 inches above levee.
Store floor	Levee level.
	33 ft 8 in above low water
1876	32 ft. 10 in. above zero
City Directrix	Zero on the guage.
	Low water.

The figures given above are very close approximations. For instance, the official reports show that the high water of June 27, 1844, reached a point 41 5 feet above the zero point on the Government gauge, and the river at 10 a. m. to-day was 33.8 feet above the same point. This makes a difference of nearly eight feet, as shown above.

NORTH ST. LOUIS.

The condition of the river at this point remains near the same as chronicled in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH. The St. Louis Saw-Mill of Lebke & Schrage, on Second and Buchanan streets, was forced to shut down to-day owing to the flow of water into wheel pits, but pumps are at work and it is thought that the mill will be able to resume to-morrow. Capt. Chris. Smith, Superintendent of the Eau Claire Lumber Company, has a force of men at work boating shingles and lathes from the company's yard to the land. The water is making rapid headway in to the lumber yards of the Knapp, Stout & Co. Company, and it is feared that the water cannot be kept out. However, the company has a force of men at work, and hope by to-night to be able to stop the water's progress. Samuel B. Stannard, of the same firm, has a gang of men at work building a levee at the foot of Bremen avenue to keep the water from flowing through that way. The rise of two inches last night has had no effect here, and no danger is anticipated unless there be a further rise of two feet.

ALONG THE LEVEE.

The water at the foot of Morgan street crawled a few more inches during the night, and is now about two feet on the floors fronting on the levee. The enterprising proprietor of the saloon and boarding house on the corner of Morgan and Levee has constructed miniature bridges from the pavement to the bar and through the lower part of the house, on which his patrons stand while imbibing the drinks. All the other business houses have suspended business, and placards on the doors of some inform all callers that the occupants have removed to the upper stories. From Morgan street to Washington avenue it is impossible for pedestrians to pass that way without wading through two feet of water. At the foot of Locust street the water is on a level with the curb stones, and each succeeding wave threatens to wash away the junk shops and boarding houses that occupy the river front. The sewer at the foot of Vine street has been washed out, rendering it dangerous for all heavy traffic passing that way. The street has caved in and the pavement shows a tendency to do likewise.

The freight from the boats is carried over a distance of about 100 feet of water and landed on the side streets near Commercial alley. All the basements from Locust to Plum streets are filled to their utmost capacity with water, and in many of the high places where it has not flowed over the pavement it is forcing an outlet through the floors. At the foot of Vine street the sewer caved in and a portion of the street and pavement has been carried away. The New Orleans Anchor Line put several men at work this morning building an elevated draw bridge from the pavement to their wharfboats to enable the men to carry the freight up without wading through the water. From Pine to Myrtle streets the water lacks a few feet from reaching the pavement, but the basements are all filled on a level with the lower story. Myrtle, and all the way to Spruce, is completely inundated, and many of the saloons that are still doing business have constructed trussel work along the floors, about two feet above the usual level. A number of skiffs ply along the levee, and in some places can row into the houses without grating against the floor were it not for the temporary walks that have been built in most of them. The Iron Mountain tracks are under about four feet of water, rendering the passage of trains over those nearest the river impossible. The high water has done little or no damage from Plum to Miller streets with the exception of submerging the Iron Mountain tracks.

About 9 o'clock this morning, as the ferryboat Edwardsville was making a trip across the river, a young colt jumped overboard at the foot of Myrtle street and made for the St. Louis side. Several men and boys attempted to surround it, when it started for the Illinois shore. Several boys undressed and started to swim toward the colt when it disappeared under water. A few seconds later it was seen in the middle of the stream, making frantic efforts to keep above water and swam to the Illinois shore up stream. A few skiffs started after the drowning horse, and by the time it floated opposite Chouteau avenue about a dozen skiffs had joined in the chase. The colt was captured by a crew started from the tug Rescue, and brought to shore at the foot of Miller street after nearly three miles swimming About a thousand people collected along the shore watching the chase.

CARONDELET.

The situation at Carondelet is much the same as it was three days ago. The ground is high from a short distance below the Arsenal, and with the exception of a branch of the Iron Mountain Railroad tracks running to the "cradle" at the landing of the Missouri Pacific Railroad transfer boat Carondelet, which is covered with water, no other damage has been done the property of this company. The raise yesterday has sent the river over the high water mark of the St. Louis Coal Tar Works, situated east of the I. M. and S. R. R. tracks, stopping the work. Some half a dozen men are thrown out of employment in consequence. Anthony & Kuhn's ice houses, near Anna street, have several more inches water in them, and a large force of men are employed transferring the ice to a house on the north side. Plum street is cut off on the upper plane of the levee by the water, which this morning washes up six feet beyond the building line of the houses fronting on the river.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Another three inch rise last night lifted the water over a couple of hundred more acres of the American Bottom. The farmers back of Venice and up and down between the river and the bluffs look upon the floods with apathy. They have lost their crops already and a foot, more or less, of water makes but little difference to them. The scene along the eastern shore has been written up so often and so diversely that but little remains to be said about it. In its present aspect it reminds one of Sodom and Gomorrah just as the waters of the Dead Sea were rising upon those devoted towns. In every direction one can see only long surging swales of muddy water; it is dirty, with a greasy fatness and a miasmatic, marshy smell. Once in awhile a fish leaps up amid the willow clumps and splashes back into the turbid current, the long circles widening out being the only incident in the still desolation. There is nothing either beautiful or attractive in the flood in its present shape. It is inconvenient and occasionally dangerous, and it will be followed by a train of fevers and agues that will make it memorable. Along the eastern shore the greatest damage has been done. If the Madison levee break and the O. and M. dyke follows it, there is no doubt that the southern part of East St. Louis will be flooded.

The break in the C., B. and Q. dyke at the gas house is spreading both north and south. The water is coming in directly from the river in a heavy torrent and passing under the C. and A. trestle it spreads out in a great fan over the bottoms northwest of East St. Louis, part of it returning into the river at once near its point of entry. The earth about the gas tanks is being torn away rapidly and the foundations around half of the building are fully exposed. A great throng of people gathers here all day long watching the rush of the water; they seem to feel an irresistible fascination which keep them intently watching the long swirl of the waves, and the foamy combing where the falls are. The watchers are not confined to any class or station. The negro roustabout with coarse canvas pantaloons tucked into rawhide boots stands gazing down just as earnestly as the superfervent girl graduate ten feet away from him.

A rumor has been industriously circulated that a great many of the railroads have stopped running. This is not so. There has been an interruption in the freight traffic of some of the lines, notably in the Southeastern and and C., B. and Q., but the interruption has not become permanent. There is a great freight block in East St. Louis and on this side, and that has had a good deal to do in stopping the trains. The passenger coaches pull out over all the lines strictly on time, and it will take three feet more water to make them stop. The Chicago and Alton road has dyked up over its track, which is the most exposed one of all the lines on the eastern shore, and a further rise of two feet will sweep it away at several points. The Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad is also in rather a dangerous predicament. A three-foot rise will break over it. The Ohio and Mississippi can stand five feet more of water, but six feet will tear it badly. All of the companies testify their sense of the perilousness of the situation by rip-rapping their dykes at all the dangerous points. They hope that this precaution is in time, but agree in the statement that time alone can tell.

Much of the inundation finds its way back into the river after only a small sortie, and this fact gives the reason why the damage done in East St. Louis has not been very much greater.

EAST CARONDELET.

The greatest damage done by the water has been to East Carondelet a settlement of between 200 and 300 souls, and to the low lands and wheat fields lying south of it on the Illinois shore. Superintendent Jones of the East St. Louis and Carondelet Railroad has done much to protect the ground east of the track from East St. Louis to East Carondelet. This is now the only barrier between the Mississippi River and the bluffs. The pressure on it at present is immense, while the embankment on which the track is built is not more than twenty feet thick at the base in the widest part. By great vigilance Mr. Jones has protected the road, and consequently the country back of it. If the raise continues the back-water entering from the south end of the tracks will submerge everything, but should this dyke break at present the water would sweep away everything on the east side. All the cattle guards along the road have been filled, and a gang of workmen kept steadily employed strengthening the weak places. The Narrow Gauge Railroad Company have repaired the break in their track east of the Meier Iron Works, and is now running trains. The stock house of the Meier works are submerged, but the casting house into which the molten iron is run stands high and dry on an elevation. Last night one of the furnaces started up after the men had erected a platform on which to work. Jas. A. Smith & Son's ice houses are still safe though surrounded by water. A barge of stone has been dumped into the river on the north side of the houses to protect the foundations from the current. In the town between the Conlogue track and the ridge, a high tract of ground about 200 feet wide, the deserted houses are well covered with water. The residents have transferred their stock and portable goods to high lands, where all who have not moved to Carondelet or St. Louis are still living. Unwilling to leave their homes unwatched, and in dread of being washed out themselves, they remain there undecided. Superintendent A. A. Talmage, of the Missouri Pacific has ordered the transfer boat Pacific, to be in readiness to take the forty families remaining on the eastern shore over to Carondelet. A POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning found Captains W. and E. Grapevine on board the boat, which is tied up at the Carondelet landing, ready to start across the river. Capt. Wm. Grapevine rode all through the bottom in a skiff, notifying the people that they would be ferried across with their stock as soon as they all agreed to leave their places. While some are in favor of leaving, the majority have persuaded them to remain, as the water would likely subside in a few days.

The principal sufferers by the flood are Messrs. Foster, Ware, Tesson, Talbott and Eury, all of whom have extensive crops mostly under water now. All the live stock has been saved. It is expected that the remaining families will leave East Carondelet to-morrow morning.

THE RIVER BELOW.

Mr. H. T. Harlow, the well known merchant, has been on a tour of observation south on the river. He was met on 'Change to-day by a POST-DISPATCH reporter who asked him what he thought about the river below St. Louis.

"Well," he replied, "I have been down below Grand Tower and I saw that the country on both sides is inundated all the way from here there, a distance of over 130 miles"

"Has much damage been done?"

"A great deal. I judge that at least half the wheat acreage is under water. This will, you know, entail an utter loss as far as it is concerned."

"You were down as far as Chester. How about the reported change of channel by the Mississippi?"

"It is a fact. You see the Mississippi has crossed through the bottom land to the Okaw River, which comes in just above Chester. This is a cut off of twelve miles and the channel of the river has changed entirely. The town of St. Marys, in Perry county, Mo., is left high and dry by this change, transformed from a river to an inland town."

BUSINESS STOPPED.

The high water has about put an effectual stop to business in grain and other commodities sold on 'Change. Nearly all the east side roads have stopped receiving freight for St. Louis, and receipts to-day of grain, etc., were insignificant, little coming in on this side either. The Venice and East St. Louis elevators have shut down, and the St. Louis cannot receive, as its railroad tracks are under water. Nothing is coming in for the Advance to take in. Central A is all right, as it is situated inland, but Central B can do next to nothing. Very little grain can be delivered to boats or barges from the elevators either, the Advance and St. Louis putting out a little, but slowly, while Central B had to stop delivering for river shipment. Of course nothing can be got out of the Venice or East St. Louis elevators. The elevator men express no alarm at the present situation so far as the elevators themselves are concerned or the stocks of grain which they hold, and which are small, nearly all being in the St. Louis. At latter house the cribs holding the grain are above where the water can reach, but if the river comes up much higher sacked grain on the first floor may be damaged. The Southern order trade has been about knocked in the head by the east side buyers refusing to receive for shipment. The interior towns in the South, from which there has been and still is an active demand, mainly for corn, can only be reached with any certainty and with the cheapest rate over the O. and M. and the Cairo Short Line. Now, that these roads have stopped receiving, Southern shippers have to depend upon the boats and the Iron Mountain road. By the latter they can ship little, as its rolling stock east of the river is scarce. The boats are only taking small sacked lots from levee, as they cannot load at the elevator. This deadlock in business is plainly perceptible on 'Change where trading is light and listless on legitimate account. About the only animation is in the "option corner," and the boys there seem to have lost some of their snap.

The Ohio and Mississippi Railroad have given notice that it will again receive freight, commencing to-morrow.

FALLING.

Mr. Archie Bryan, of the Phil Chappelle, has watched the river closely, and declares that at this point it has receded half an inch. He further predicts a fall of six inches before daylight to-morrow. The best posted men says there has been no further rise to-day, and that the river, at best, is at a stand still.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—Ohio Valley and Tennessee, partly cloudy or cloudy weather with rains, easterly veering to southerly winds, lower barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Lower Lake region, partly cloudy weather and occasional rain, easterly veering to southerly winds, lower barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Upper Lake region, partly cloudy or cloudy weather with rain, easterly veering to southerly winds, falling followed in western portion by rising barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys, partly cloudy weather and occasional rain, southerly veering to westerly winds in former and northerly in latter district; rising preceded in former district by falling barometer; rising followed in latter district by falling temperature. The Missouri will continue to fall above Jefferson City and Mississippi will continue to fall at St. Paul and to rise at St. Louis.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

England.

LONDON, May 5.—Dillon is ill. He will be removed to the infirmary to-day. There is no cause for anxiety regarding his condition. The statement Dillon would resign his seat in the Commons was a canard. The question will be left for the decision of the Executive Committee and League.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

LONDON, May 5.—The Earl of Granville recently addressed a dispatch to Mr. Lowell, the American Minister on the subject of copyright, saying it would be satisfactory to England if a treaty could be negotiated with America on the same basis as with other countries, namely, without any condition for the manufacture of English books in America. But if this condition is essential England will negotiate on that basis. A treaty providing that books written by American authors in England shall be manufactured in America in order to have the copyright there would be covered by the existing act, but it provides that books written by American authors in America shall be manufactured in England in order to have the copyright in England. Such a provision would require the sanction of Parliament.

Mr. Lowell replied as follows: "A treaty confirmed by the Senate would be law in America. Possibly supplementary legislation would be needed to enforce its provisions in detail, but I understand that this will follow as a matter of course."

A NEW CABLE.

LONDON, May 5.—The steamer Faraday will sail to-day with 600 miles of cable to lay the shore ends of the new cable. She will commence operations at Penzance, to hence across to Cape Sable and then return for the deep sea section. It is expected the two lines will be finished this summer.

THE LAND BILL.

LONDON, May 5.—Dissatisfaction is beginning to prevail among the reasonable section of the Irish members of Parliament at the slow progress of the land bill.

MOST.

The trial of Herr Most for Saturday next has been postponed until the next session of the Central Criminal Court.

THE COMMONS.

LONDON, May 5.—It is stated the Home Rule members of the Commons have decided to refrain from voting on the second reading of the land bill. It is rumored in the lobby of the Commons this afternoon that Lord Selborne, Lord High Chancellor, has resigned on account of the bill for the amendment of the Parliamentary oath act. The Home Rulers intend to oppose every Government measure in the House.

Tunis.

MADRID, May 5.—The Liberalist states that the Spanish ambassador at Paris has been privately informed that the Tunis affair would be settled within a week, as France is anxious to avoid further complications.

UNTIMELY.

TUNIS, May 5.—The rumored occupation of Beja and Porto Farina by the French is untrue. The Bey persists in his refusal of the French demands. An officer of the British iron clad Monarch visited the Bey yesterday. General Logeratz' column has not advanced beyond Djenbada.

Austro-Hungary.

VIENNA, May 5.—The whole city is now devoted to preparations for the reception of the Princess Stephanie, who is to be married to the Crown Prince Rudolph on the 10th inst. The route of the procession to-morrow, when the Princess will make her entry into the city, is being elaborately decorated. The illumination of the private houses and the dome of the Cathedral of St. Stephen by the electric light will be a great feature of the festivities.

Spain.

LONDON, May 5.—The Spanish Minister here announces that the distinguished jurors, who include United States Minister Lowell, are unable to award the prize on the poem of Calderon, as, although the compositions sent in are meritorious, they are deficient in their special application to the subject.

Germany.

FRANKFORT, May 5.—At a meeting of the bondholders of the Oregon and California railroad to-day President Villards' plan for the reorganizing of the road was adopted by 5,825 to 19.

Greece.

LONDON, May 5.—The Greek force ordered to proceed to the frontier to be ready to take over the ceded territory consists of three army corps.

South Africa.

CAPETOWN, May 5.—The Opposition refuses to vote the supplies and the fall of the Ministry is considered certain.

Russia.

VIENNA, May 5.—A correspondent declares the recent rumors that the Czarina is ill, are all untrue.

France.

LONDON, May 5.—Victor Hugo is quite ill.

Shot Himself.

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 5.—Abe Forst, a well-known Hebrew citizen, shot himself to death at his home in this city this noon. Family troubles are supposed to be the cause.

"THE WIDOW'S MITE."

A widow—she had only one,
A puny and decrepit son;
But, day and night,
Though fretful oft, and weak and small,
A loving child, he was her all—
The widow's mite.

The widow's mite—ay, so sustained,
She battled onward, nor complained,
Though friends were fewer;
And, while she toil'd for daily fare,
A little crutch upon the stair
Was music to her.

I saw her then—and now I see
That, though resign'd and cheerful, she
Has sorrow'd much;
She has—He gave it tenderly—
Much faith; and, carefully laid by,
A little crutch.

FREDERICK LOCKER.

LOCAL ETIQUETTE.

A Question That is Disturbing High Washington Circles.

Washington Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

There is a sharp itching in certain circles to introduce changes into the social structure of official life here. The Republican has undertaken the discussion of one of the new social dilemmas. It is whispered in feminine circles that the present administration has already been agitated by a question equally as important as the deadlock in the Senate. The latter merely affects the political condition of the administration, while the subject referred to is of vital interest to the social status of the Cabinet, and the female portion thereof is in a dilemma, and knows not exactly how to decide. Conferences have been had among the ladies of the Ministers—for the various Secretaries are, and should be called Cabinet Ministers (vide Mrs. Dahlgren's "Etiquette")—and even the "first lady in the land" has been consulted as to her views upon this momentous question.

As near as can be ascertained the point at issue is whether the Cabinet ladies shall return calls in person or by card—that is, calls from ladies other than in official life. The social duties imposed upon the wives of high government officials are certainly very arduous, and those women who endeavor to do justice to their home life often find it exceedingly trying to meet all the exactions of society, so if there could be a way of escape from some of those requirements, it would be a consummation devoutly to be wished. Of course it is not expected that the President or his wife will return calls. That has been the custom ever since the Presidency of the immortal Washington, and where exceptions have been made and the Executive appeared at private houses, it has been considered a special honor conferred upon the individuals so favored, but with the Cabinets and their ladies it has been different. They have been in the habit of attending the entertainments of citizens occupying positions of official or social distinction, and the wives of the Secretaries considered it their duty to return calls from both of these classes. All the ladies of the present Cabinet have had a large experience in social life, from the fact that their husbands filled high positions in other directions (except in the case of Mrs. Lincoln, and her experience was gained before her marriage, when, as Miss Harlan, she was one of the most brilliant belles ever in Washington society), and they fully realized the tax upon their time and physique if they should follow the precedent in the matter of returning calls.

This subject has been brought to our attention from the perusal of proof sheets of Mrs. Dahlgren's new edition of her book upon etiquette, in which that eminent authority upon social matters thus refers to this very point: The question arises at once, especially among people of consideration who are not in official life, and who can thus be overlooked, whether they will consent to receive so partial an equivalent for their visit. While it can not be denied that official life constitutes a leading element in Washington society, yet the official, however brilliant, is so very ephemeral that in real solidity of social importance the resident society must always form an essential feature, and be classed as of the very elite. Now, this resident society has reason to be jealous of its privileges, for these are securely based upon the highest respectability. The peculiar influences and cosmopolitan atmosphere of the National Capital has given it a refinement and breadth which make it too valuable an accessory to be overlooked. If the ladies whose husbands occupy official positions here fail to recognize with due consideration the resident social circle, it is to be feared that sufficient reason does not exist to induce this society to add the charm of its life long training to their more transitory existence.

The fact, however, cannot be overlooked, that all society in Washington who entertain much suffer from the present custom of being expected to exchange visits in person. An emancipation, therefore, is needed more or less by innovation. Our social customs, like our language, can only be altered in their polite usage by that common consent that makes law.

It is to be hoped that by next winter, when the social season is fully open, this question will be definitely settled, and in a manner that shall relieve Cabinet ladies of some portion of their burdens and at the same time not infringe upon the tender sensibilities of those outside the official circle who are yet entitled to social consideration.

A Crushed Tragedian.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

C. N. Pendleton, whose first appearance before the Louisville public was at Macauley's Theater at the time Miss Selena Fetter made her debut, was arrested last night on charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. His connection with the troupe was severed here after the first engagement, and Pendleton concluded to stay in the city. His ambition for stage honors appeared to have entirely died out and the hopes of a rising genius were blasted forever—the tragedian was crushed. He had not been long in the city until Mr. O'Brien, the Southern Hotel keeper, had him jailed on a bail writ for board. Pendleton in some way or other raised the amount of the bill, and was of course released. He turns up next as a solicitor for the Evening Post. He labored awhile at this, but the remuneration was not sufficient for him, and besides he thought he was not adapted for the work. At the time that he was engaged Gov. Underwood told him his duties, and added that he need not bother himself about collecting any bills. Mr. Pendleton, however, concluded to try his hand at collecting just to see how it would work, and during last week neglected his duties entirely and collected instead. Although he collected considerable money he made no returns and his connection with that branch of the Post's business was learned only when a number of patrons refused to pay bills presented by the authorized collector, on the ground that they had already paid them. An examination of the receipts showed that Pendleton had been actively engaged in collecting. The matter was given into the hands of the detectives, and last night as Detective Bligh dropped into Macauley's Theater he found Pendleton waiting for a pass to Selena Fetter's benefit. Pendleton was placed in jail. He claims to be related to all the Pendletons of Ohio.

The Oklahoma Invaders.

Wichita (Kas.) Special to Chicago Times.

The faces around the Oklahoma headquarters in this city were perceptibly lengthened yesterday. A dispatch was received by Capt. D. L. Payne, from Fort Smith, announcing an adverse decision by the United States Court. Several of the parties about said headquarters had come a long distance to attend the meeting, heretofore called, and were not a little disturbed by the unexpected news. To-day at 10 o'clock, in a public hall in this city, the boomers met to the number of eighty-six men. Capt. Payne, commander of what is known as the colony organization, acted as chairman, and in a speech of some length made the formal announcement that his arrest by the Federal troops for trespass had been declared by the court legal, which, for the present at least, would put a stop to any further attempt to settle in Oklahoma, but believing that they had the right and law upon their side, he urged the maintenance of the organization against the day when they could peaceably take possession. He was followed by Capt. Eichlebarger and others, who urged the contribution of funds to sustain their valiant captain and keep up their headquarters in this city. A motion to raise a committee on resolutions was then passed and an adjournment for dinner had. Before closing Capt. Payne most emphatically denied that the railroads had done anything to forward the movement. After dinner, one Whitmore, an Englishman, but a short time in this country, in a rambling speech of great length denounced the Indian policy of the Administration, belittled the customs and efforts of Christian people who have attempted to stand by the Indian and his rights, and in a heated manner appealed to the passions of the crowd. After the adoption of a long string of resolutions, which promised support to Payne and urged him on to new efforts to effect a lodgment in the territory, and which criticised the United States court at Fort Smith, the Oklahoma boom collapsed. In the meantime the order of the Court with reference to Payne is awaited with anxiety upon the part of his friends.

Tilden at the Dog Show.

New York Letter to Courier-Journal.

The crowds that visited the dog show were continuous and thronging; and, among those who might have been seen any and every day, sauntering up and down the aisles, inspecting carefully the kennels and passing familiar observations with the keepers, was the figure of a man who could hardly pass anywhere without attracting attention. This gentleman wore an easy fitting black suit, with silk hat, and light surtout, and was always accompanied by a valet, sometimes by a friend. He had several dogs of his own on exhibition, and one of these took a first prize. He is a great authority among the dog people, and a conceded master of dogology. They say he is as good a judge of dogs as of men, and that he is not to be deceived by externals. The name of this person is S. J. Tilden.

Mr. Tilden is as hale and hearty as he was six years ago, when, as Governor of New York, he reorganized the Democratic party of the nation upon a series of live issues, and put it in the field to win. He takes an active interest in public affairs; but he declines to have anything to do with active politics. Though but sixty-seven years of age, and apparently good for twenty years more, he prefers to devote these latter to the recreation of a mind capable of the highest æsthetic enjoyment, and so, in consequence, he devotes the leisure which he can snatch from the personal supervision he gives a large estate, to the embellishment, within and without, of his two dwellings, the one in Gramercy Park, the other Graystone, above Yonkers on the Hudson. Just now he is decorating the grounds of these. During the winter, however, he made many purchases of pictures and rare and curious books.

It is Mr. Tilden's opinion that, had he been inaugurated to the place the people elected him to fill, he would now be in his grave, and as life is as dear to him as to other people, he feels that the loss of the Presidency was a positive gain, and so far from sulking, he is one of the happiest and most placid philosophers in the world. His gift of speech, too, is yet undiminished, and his talks upon great questions are full of the old scintillating wisdom and shrewd epigram.

Kitchen Gardens.

From the New York Tribune.

The kitchen garden was only one woman's idea a few years ago—Miss Emily Huntington's—and now it is a system with a metropolitan association to apply it and annual meetings and reports. Nearly one thousand children of the poorer classes in this city were taught last year the hundred and one little household duties which they may have to perform some day as tidy servants in great houses, or as the mistresses of some little home of their own, and the knowledge of which cannot fail to make them more useful and happier in any station of life. They begin when they are hardly more than babies, and, under Miss Huntington's clever system learn to sweep, set table, wait on the door, wash clothes, etc., all the while regarding it as a pretty game—which, in fact, it is made with the use of toy dishes, brooms, etc., and of simple songs to describe every process. The system is spreading elsewhere. Successful classes have been formed in Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, Albany, Troy, Pittsburg, St. Louis, Cincinnati and smaller places. The system has also been introduced among the colored people, and the managers in this country are striving to make it a regular part of the course of instruction in every industrial and public school. The association is anxious to raise $2,000 this year by increasing the membership.

FIVE O'CLOCK TEA.

From the New York Mail.

Brocaded goods retain their favor and many are in small designs.

Handkerchief goods have been utilized to make kilt suits for boys.

Breakfast capes are made gorgeous by being trimmed with steel and gold lace.

Goods with dots, which have been neglected since last summer, are again to be seen.

Laces are now dyed to match exactly in color the material they are employed upon.

The laced shoe is trying hard to regain favor, but buttons are not so easily deposed.

Bayadere stripes refuse to be ignored, and the problem is what to do with them in walking dresses.

Silverware in dark, rich colors is superseding that in which the metal retains its natural tint.

The ways of making and trimming waists at present are as varied as the manner of making skirts.

In the tops of some of the new undressed kid gloves an elastic is put, and frills of lace are also seen upon them.

There is a new nail cutter which shuts up like a patent glove buttoner, cutting the nail instead of filing it, and is a favorite with dandies.

Water silks are in demand. Light ones are made up into evening dresses, and they are combined with cashmere for walking dresses.

Pockets for handkerchiefs have caught the moving fever which devastated New York in May, and have migrated to the outside of the newest fans.

Many of the prettiest shades in the new silks are accurately termed accidental, for they are really the accidental result of dyers' experiments.

The Bernhardt will leave one legacy to our countrymen in the shape of her poke bonnet, which it is evident will be generally followed this summer.

Stained glass grows in favor daily, and in a large number of parlors it affords the "dim religious light" which one wishes sometimes was a trifle more profane.

This is an economical season for wraps, since all sorts of odd materials are used, and women look as if they had cut up any bit of cloth which had come in their way.

A queer Syrian necklace just introduced, and made up of small blue glass bands strung together, looks as though it might have been designed by a surgeon with a large practice in amputations.

If you do not like Spanish lace you had better pack your trunk and go to Alaska. It will be in that distant region only that a woman will dare appear this summer without her gown trimmed with Spanish lace, and plenty of it.

Ivory backed brushes are now indispensable on your elegante's dressing table, and these are not so expensive after all, for though they cost at the beginning, the ivory back will outlast a dozen sets of bristles and a good sun bath now and then keeps it fresh and bright.

Two effective combinations among the shaded fabrics visible are "capucine" and "coral red," which are good examples of the latitude allowed in tints. The former name covers almost any shade of brown, and the latter name may be applied to anything from blood red to flesh color.

AMUSEMENTS.

OLYMPIC.

Haverly's Mastodon Minstrels fill the Olympic this week from parquette to dome. The programme in all its variety is keenly relished and the favorites are recalled for every song and sketch. They remain for the week.

THE CIRCUS.

Sells Brothers' Millionaire Circus, on the corner of Nineteenth and Pine streets, attracted large audiences yesterday to both performances. The weather was not agreeable, but under the huge canvas everything is comfortable, and the programme could not fail to give satisfaction. Showers of applause rewarded the efforts of Robinson, the bare-back rider, Conkling, the clown, and Gorman, the hurdle-rider. The performing dogs furnished a fund of amusement for the little folks.

POPE'S.

Prof. Seeman's performances are drawing to a close, and all who have not visited Pope's Theater during his engagements this season should do so during this week in order to receive a souvenir. One hundred and fifty-six presents are given away at each performance, including diamond rings, gold watches, silk dresses, silver and china sets, etc.

Wayman McCreery's Opera.

The rehearsal of a home work, W. C. McCreery's comic opera, "L'Afrique," the libretto by W. Schuyler, was attended last evening with every element of success. This is a charming story of love and valor told in music which sparkles with originality and beauty. The scenes are in the Transvaal, opening at Fort Robinson on the border. Here some young English soldiers are stationed under command of a pompous, arrogant captain who has a pretty daughter. He is desirous of contracting a matrimonial alliance of his child with the rich chief of the Dutch Boers, Van Zwichenboot, but the young lady's affections are bestowed upon Lieutenant Hamilton De Bracy, and she plainly manifests her intention of marrying him at all hazards. The Captain raves and the Boer chief, aided by Zulus, effects a cruel separation of the lovers and all in fort. Dramatic incidents of a stirring character follow and at length the girl is rescued, returning to the arms of her lover and general happiness. There are many bright melodies in this work and the choruses have been worked out with care. It cannot fail to become popular, and for its strength of originality Mr. McCreery is entitled to much credit. The dialogue is entertaining to a degree, poetry and humor abounding throughout. The opera will be produced at the Olympic during the week commencing May 16, with the following excellent cast: Capt. Fitzhugh Montague Jones, Mr. Edward Dierkes; Lieut. Geoffry Plantagenet Hamilton DeBracy, Mr. Phil Branson; Mynheer Arent Van Zwickenboot, Mr. Alfred Poindexter; Sergeant Tops, Mr. W. G. Smyth; Georgiana Montague Jones, Miss Cora Carpenter; Alice, her maid, Miss Pauline Schuler; Chorus—Sopranos: Mrs. Pritchard, Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Matthews, Miss Libby, Miss Haggerty, Miss Pitman, Miss Pritchard, Miss Schuler, Miss Harrison, Miss Pale, Miss Attos, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Audubon, Miss Adams, Miss Schofield, Miss Schuler, Miss Sherrick, Miss Anderson, Miss English, Miss Wait, Miss Lindsay; tenors, Messrs. Crawford, Buskitt, McIlvane, Hopper, Mills, Guion, Kilgen, McKenna, McNeil, Mitchell; basses, Messrs. Norcross, Ryan, Hoeg, McGaffey, Robyn, Baumgartner, Cornell, Clark, Chartrand, Tomilson.

A Dead Giraffe.

Sells Brothers received a dead giraffe yesterday. It died on the way from New York. A telegram was at once dispatched by the circus proprietors for another giraffe and it is now en route for Nineteenth and Pine streets.

The exercises of the Scientific Academy of the St. Louis University took place last night. The subject was "Celestial Physics." Papers were read by S. C. Church, John Cahill, Henry Young and Albert Meyer.

The members of the Mississippi River Committee started this morning for New Orleans via the steamer Octavia. The commission will hold meetings on board the boat and will adjourn when New Orleans is reached.

While Morris O'Connell, an employe of the Atlantic Mills, was passing near the machinery last night, his blouse caught in a wheel. His breast and right arm were terribly lacerated. His injuries are not necessarily fatal. He was taken home to 3217 Mary Ann street.

The Southern Hotel Company gave a banquet last evening to the contractors who had charge of the building. The spread was served in the ladies' ordinary. Speeches were made by Hon. Thos. Allen, Messrs. Geo. I. Barnett, Geo. Knapp, D. A. Breslin, Porter White, Anthony Ittner and others.

The St. Louis Sportsmen's Park and Club Association met at the Lindell last night. The capital stock of the association is $5,000. Of the 200 shares, 116 have already been taken. It was reported that the Grand Avenue Park was being rapidly repaired and would soon be ready for use. The next meeting will be held Tuesday evening!

The society for the suppression of vice met Tuesday evening at Central Presbyterian Church. Hon. Nathan Cole presided, and an address was made by Mr. McAffee, Western agent of the National Association. The subject of a law to prevent the traffic in obscene literature and filthy pictures was discussed by Messrs. Cole and Crawford, Revs. Brookes, Rhodes and others.

A meeting of the executive committee of the brewers who are preparing to strike was held at Turner Hall last night. Schnaider's employes reported that they had been promised a shortening of one hour per day, and that they would be let off on Sundays at 9 a. m. Favorable reports were also received from all the other breweries save Wainwright's and Grone's, where the men are already satisfied. A mass meeting will be held on Sunday evening.

Wickliffe Trusen made a deadly assault upon a fellow prisoner, John Reilly, in the Chestnut Street Station at 1 o'clock this morning. Trusen had been locked up during the afternoon, but the police, in searching him, failed to discover that he had a long-bladed knife in his possession. Reilly was put into the same cell late at night, and a fight ensued, and Trusen cut Reilly on the left side of the neck, twice in the face, and severed his little finger from his left hand. The injuries are not dangerous.

George Steer, an old man 60 years of age, committed suicide under peculiar circumstances in the Carondelet Police Station last night. Just before dark he began quarreling with some boys who were teasing him in the streets. He drew his revolver, fired at one of them and hit him in the forehead. For this offence he was locked up at Gates Street Station. An hour later Sergeant Raftiet found him hanging to the bars of his cell. He had used his handkerchief to strangle himself. The body was taken to the Morgue.

The meeting of the Ladies' Bethel Aid Society was held yesterday in St. John's M. E. Church. Mrs. J. A. Allen presided and Miss M. E. Edgell acted as secretary. Drake, and Miss Helen Budd; Secretary, Miss M. E. Edgell; Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Davidson. The annual meeting of the Bethel Mission Association will be held at 8 p. m. this evening at Pilgrim Church.

Peter Smith, the stove molder, who leaped from the bridge last Tuesday, with suicidal intent and was rescued at the foot of Chouteau avenue, made another attempt on his life last night. At 7 o'clock groans were heard in his room at his boarding house, corner of Broadway and Spring streets. An entrance was effected and Smith was found lying on the bed with a gash in his throat and another one on his right wrist. He was taken to the Dispensary and afterwards sent to the City Hospital. The wounds are not dangerous. The cause of Peter's persistent attempts at self-destruction is a lack of funds.

THE most miserable man in America just now is W. B. Miller, of the Guiding Star. He won't sleep a wink until he takes down that rag of the Rube Springer. And the trouble is that he will have to do it all with steam, as he is sadly deficient in wind. Go in, Miller; we'll bet on the Guiding Star every time.

WE always thought that R. W. Dugan would ultimately get control of the Mississippi, and since he has bought out the Keokuk Northern Line this premonition is becoming alarming to small operators. Dugan hasn't been scratching around on the bottom of the river among the catfish and turtles for the past twenty-five years for nothing.

WHAT'S the matter with New Orleans? Has all the vim been "squoze" out of the newspaper business by monopolists, or is the city going to decay. The river columns are not what they once were nor what they should be now. Does the Mississippi still flow by that old burgh, or are the jetties reached by some new route? We know by the amount of grain that is leaving here for Europe that Eads' works are still booming.

A PITTSBURG telegram of Tuesday says: The John L. Rhoads departed for St. Louis, with all the freight she wanted and engagements below, including one hundred tons at Wheeling. Pilots, James Henderson and W. H. Hall. The Batchelor and Hudson are due to-night and the Wyoming to-morrow. The latter boat will leave for St. Louis on Friday. Turtle Creek Bar, just below Dam No. 2, continues very troublesome. No less than five towboats were aground there yesterday.

THE following item was handed to this reporter yesterday. It is printed to show the utter unreliability of certain yarns in circulation concerning speed of boats on the Mississippi: "In yesterday's POST-DISPATCH I saw an account of the R. E. Lee's run from Memphis to Cairo in 16 hours and 38 minutes—very good. But on the 1st day of March, 1863, the Iowa, a stern wheeler, made the same run in 16 hours and 42 minutes, and it was not a good day for running either. The Iowa was built by the Brown Bros., of Pittsburg, Pa., and carried ten hundred tons."

AN exchange says: "There are persons in New Orleans who seem to know what they are talking about that are willing to wager that the White can make the run from Cairo to New Orleans inside of forty-eight hours." It is evident that the persons who make the above assertion do not know what they are talking about. The White, though a fast boat, is not so much faster than the Natchez, as was proven during the contest between these steamers last winter. It will be remembered that the White backed out from the New Orleans wharf under the Natchez' stern, and the "Big Indian" led her handsomely to Red Church, a distance of twenty-five miles. Admitting the White to be the fastest boat afloat, which she doubtless is, she has not given evidence of the miraculous speed claimed for her by a certain class of talkative boatmen.

WM. J. FRY, who is steamboating in South America, writes: The river for the first 500 miles from the ocean is very good; then for 250 miles it is much like the Missouri, and for the last thirty miles it is the devil, right in the Andes, full of rocks, and with a tremendous current, which we never start in with less than 200 pounds of steam and the fastest boat on the river, too, and yet we frequently have to put out a line to pull us through. When we get to the upper end we have nearly always to wait several days, often weeks, to get water enough to go down on, as down boats require much more water than when coming up. Each company have their repair shops at Barranquilla, near the ocean. All the crews are natives except some of the captains and engineers, and no language is spoken except Spanish. So far as the climate is concerned I am satisfied. The days are quite warm the year round, but the nights are always cool enough for blankets. It is healthier here, I think, than in Louisiana. I have not seen a storm since I came here. For 100 miles of the upper end there are no mosquitos. But it is worth a good deal of money to work here, where everything is the reverse of what you see in the United States, and I would advise you to come and see for yourself before bringing a boat, though for myself I cannot complain, having the best boat and wages in the river. There is no society in this country. It is almost an unbroken wilderness the whole length of the river. I seldom see a paper and don't know what is going on away from here. There are no papers published in this country, and a New Orleans paper would be a godsend I hardly expect to receive. One good feature with engineers here is that their wages are never stopped, and which are about the same as are paid on the Mississippi; nor have they to pay any board bills. The pilots are all natives; none of them get over $100 a month. None of the officers eat in the cabin except the captain, engineers and clerk. The engineers rank next to the captain and generally get the same wages. The trip from Barinquilla to Honda, 800 miles, is never made, in less than seven days, always laying by at night, except in the lower end of the river. The trip down is never made in less than five or six days.

IF the flood continues a few weeks longer the Bridge Company will be able to pay big dividends.

THE Musical Festival in New York City does not seem to distort the metropolis with a hurricane of enthusiasm.

WARM weather is reported at Bismarck, Dacota. That means melting snow in the mountains and a premature June boom in the Missouri.

NEARLY one-third of the State of Illinois is under water and now the people are threatened with an extra session of their worthless Legislature.

THE river at this point is about at a standstill. The Osage started to decline last night, and as the Missouri and the big upper rivers are subsiding, we may safely claim to have seen the worst of the flood here.

BOB INGERSOLL has been retained as counsel for the big Star Route thieves. As BOB is a skeptic and infidel and an unbeliever generally, it is not a difficult matter for him to believe in the innocence of BRADY and his pals.

EVERYBODY agrees that Mr. DORSEY saved Indiana last fall, and yet Indiana has not stretched forth her strong right arm to save Mr. DORSEY. As a matter of fact, Indiana will have about as much as she is able to do to care for her favorite son, Mr. BRADY.

AN English newspaper correspondent named PERKINS is fighting with the Tunisian tribes against the French. If the wild men only had our incomparable ELI to do the lying for them, they would soon waft the French into the Mediterranean.

IT is to be regretted that the American stables are cutting such a poor figure in the England race courses this year. Our horses are better than those that carry off the prizes, but under the rules of the English turf they are handicapped to death.

IT may interest some people to know that the new Czar of Russia has not been assassinated yet. A rumor to that effect prevailed in the city this morning, probably started by some reader of the Republican who had just heard of the blowing up of ALEXANDER II.

MR. TILDEN thinks that the cares of a Presidential Administration would have killed him. This is owing to Mr. TILDEN'S acute patriotism. There's HAYES who was placed in the White House by fraud and theft, and yet he stood the wear and tear like a granite bowlder. In fact he fattened under pressure.

PEOPLE who are disposed to accuse the St. Louis Republican of a lack of progressive ideas will have to take a back seat. Our contemporary has just referred to "an alliteral announcement of an illiteral fact." If RICHARD GRANT WHITE is not overwhelmed with affairs we would like to have him dissect this sentence.

YESTERDAY the divine actress, SARAH BERNHARDT, sailed away for France amid the plaudits of the street arabs of New York City. The country is about $150,000 poorer by the visit of SARAH, but our people have derived great æsthetic benefits from her acting and our actresses have been taught that it is possible for a tall, exiguous female to handle a trail gracefully.

IN a moment of petulance Prince BISMARCK threatened the other day to remove the German capital from Berlin. Our distinguished fellow-citizen, L. U. REAVIS, should place himself in communication with BISMARCK at once. He could give him the benefit of his experience, and who knows but what he might induce the Chancellor to locate his capital here in St. Louis?

AS THE POST-DISPATCH is not doing a catch-penny business it is not compelled to resort to impudent sensationalism. People who have depended on it for news about the high water in this vicinity have not been subjected to false reports or shocked by the exaggerations of impecunious people who are driven by necessity to "raise the wind," no matter at what sacrifice of truth and honesty.

SOME idea of the utterly harmless character of a French duel may be gathered from the fact that a couple of skillful fencing masters fought at Vesinet the other day and the only casualty was a scratch on the hand and wrist of one of the brave chevaliers. In France the art of duelling is now not to get hurt. In this country we hold that a duel is beneath contempt unless the country for a quarter of a mile in every direction is splattered with gore.

IT is telegraphed from Dublin to the London Times that the arrest of DILLON has not created the slightest excitement. In fact, it is claimed that the arrest has had a soothing effect. Many of the warmest friends of the tenant farmers are said to condemn DILLON'S inflammatory speeches and are rather pleased with his suppression. This news, it must be borne in mind, comes through a hostile camp. The Irish cause can't be very well grounded if the arbitrary arrest of a leader has a quieting effect on the agitators.

THE Aldermanic Board of New York City has passed the ordinance giving an Electric Light Company the privilege of laying its wires in the streets over the veto of the Mayor. In vetoing the measure the Mayor took the ground that the franchise was a valuable one and that the city should derive some profit from it. In England the light is being introduced into private residences as well as public buildings, and the holders of gas stocks may as well make up their minds that they have seen the end of the days of fat dividends.

MR. WATTERSON, who is now visiting his old friend and benefactor, Mr. TILDEN, at his New York home, writes to his paper that SAMUEL is placid, happy and contented. He assured Mr. W. that if he had been allowed to take his seat as President in 1877 he would now be in his grave. As he still has a desire to live and accumulate a little more money, he regards the members of the Electoral Commission as his friends. The premium that he bagged at the dog-show the other day seems to have established peace between him and all the world.

WE are always hearing about the talented Young American artists who are in Paris studying with the great masters and occasionally covering canvas with the outeroppings of sublime genius. And yet, out of this struggling army, only twenty-eight have been permitted to hang pictures in the Paris Salon this year. Cincinnati, although the great art center of the Western World, is only represented by one picture—the work of a son of Ex-Governor COX. Philadelphia has nine pictures, New York six, Boston eight, San Francisco one, Chicago one and St. Louis none. It reconciles us to know that in the picture-making business Chicago and Cincinnati are barely able to get a place.

WHEN Mr. DORSEY, fresh from his struggle in Indiana in behalf of GARFIELD and Reform, arrived in New York City covered with the dust and sweat of battle, his friends and admirers gave him a dinner at the Delmonico Restaurant which cost $265 per platter. The renowned WM. B. ASTOR was there and it was the impression about that time that a man who had done so much to preserve the Republic ought to have the second place in the Post Office Department. Alas, how times have changed! Mr. DORSEY is now a supplicant for pardon and when he gets out of the Star Route investigation he will need a banquet for vindication purposes, beside which the New York feed will appear like a free lunch at a real estate sale.

THERE isn't a Street Railway Company in St. Louis that is complying with its contract with the city to keep the streets in repair between its tracks. A glance at Fifth street, between Olive and St. Charles, will afford a very fair idea of what may be seen all over the city. These companies, which give little or nothing in return for the valuable franchises that they enjoy, cannot plead poverty as an excuse for not keeping their contracts with the city. There is no need of a Railroad Commissioner with the paltry salary of $900 a year to compel the companies to perform a plain duty. If Mayor EWING will drop a few coals of fire on the backs of the official tortoises in his neighborhood there will be visible agitation among the track repairers. If the city can't repair streets itself it still has power to compel the Street Railway Companies to do their part of the work.

A REPORT comes from Louisville to the effect that MARY ANDERSON, the actress, has about made up her mind to cut loose from her guardian and step-father, Dr. HAMILTON GRIFFIN, who has been riding about the country on her shoulders for several years as an Old Man of the Sea. Miss ANDERSON is not much of an actress, but she has a good strong voice and some declamatory power and is able to earn about $60,000 a year. She has demonstrated that the American public would pay liberally for a home-made actress of real merit, with physique enough to play thirty weeks a year. When Miss ANDERSON first brought her crude talents to the stage her step-father, a coarse, avaricious, parsimonious man, with little or no culture and absolutely no soul, fastened himself upon her as a business manager. This was all well enough, as a business manager was necessary, though a man more experienced and capable would have been able to add materially to the exchequer of the young lady. Dr. GRIFFIN, not content with playing the part of guardian to his minor step-daughter, re-elected himself to that position after she had reached her majority and continued to sequester all her earnings. He only allowed her sufficient money for light personal expenses, and it has been said that MARY was compelled occasionally to go to him and plead in her most pathetic stage tones for a dime wherewith to purchase a supply of her favorite chewing-gum. As every penny in the keeping of the old padrone came from the hard labor of the ambitious girl, this was thought by some people to be rather hard. As fast as the actress' funds increased the Doctor invested them in real estate and securities in his own name. It is claimed that he has laid away $100,000 in this style, and MARY has at last rebelled. She has resolved to appeal to the Courts for protection and will make an effort to force the greedy step-father to a fair division. If this should lead to a final business separation it would be worth a good deal to MARY ANN, for her step-father is distasteful to the press and the business public generally. He awakens a feeling of resentment in the bosom of nearly every person with whom he has dealings, and this naturally reacts against the actress. By throwing the Doctor overboard Miss ANDERSON will confer a great blessing upon the public, besides doing herself a long-delayed favor.

HAVING recovered from the exhaustion incident to a prolonged campaign in behalf of the establishment of the whipping-post in Missouri, the Republican now comes up to the advocacy of a chain-gang. The suggestion of Circuit Attorney HARRIS that the jail is regarded as a sort of pleasure resort for criminals, and that some steps should be taken to compel prisoners to earn their bread, is readily snapped up by the paper which never seems so happy as when it is urging the punishment and humiliation of the unfortunate classes. Under the law all persons in this city convicted of misdemeanors under the statutes and sentenced to jail, or who may be committed for non-payment of fines or costs, may be set to work on the public streets or highways. The Circuit Attorney dwells feelingly upon the life of indolence led by the inmates of the jail, and is anxious that the institution should be made repulsive. As cowhiding is not admissable the next best thing is the chain-gang. By dressing up the jail birds in stripped suits, attaching balls to their legs and setting them to work upon the streets they can be humiliated and kept from the commission of petty offenses. This is the theory. The able Circuit Attorney bases his humane proposition on the idea that a large percentage of the jail boarders commit crimes for the sole purpose of securing free board in the luxurious City Jail. It may be true that in the winter season some sorely-pressed wretches prefer the jail to the bitter life-struggle on the outside, but the probabilities are that the men who can't pay fines and costs and who go to jail in consequence are as deserving as one-half the people outside who are able to keep out of the clutches of the law. The theory that the men who happen to be caught in an infraction of the law must be terrorized and brutalized belongs exclusively to the age of torture. If the city stands in actual need of the services of its convicts then the chain-gang should be established, but Mr. HARRIS is altogether mistaken when he supposes that there will be any less crime in the community or that the jail will be less crowded after his policy is carried out. What is needed to relieve the jail most is a prompt administration of justice. If the greasy murderers, who occupy the best quarters and grow fat while their crimes are being forgotten, could be promptly sent to the gallows or the State Prison where they belong, we could excuse the poor fellows who break into the jail in the inclement winter season by the commission of petty offenses, or who are languishing there because they are too poor to pay fines and costs.

LAST week we gently chided our philosophical friend, the editor of the Kirksville Democrat, because he predicted that a slight tangling up of the planets was likely to produce a recurrence of the old, worn-out plague. This week our thoughtful brother admits that he was a little rash, and in an article designed to set himself right in the eyes of all progressive evolutionists he says:

> Man surely, in every particular, is only an educt of nature and its intelligent Force (which latter is our highest concept of God), and thus he must be affected with each change or metamorphosis—this, we think, is warranted by scientific induction. We love you, Mr. POST-DISPATCH, and your criticism because you DESIRE TO BE FREE, but we think that sometimes in your haste that you do mischief in not fully perceiving the fact that this universe as seen by us, is in exact antithesis—man at one end of the line and Nature or God at the other.

Standing as we do at the end of the line we humbly apologize to our guide, philosopher and friend. We are disposed to move a little hasty at times, our methods of thought being quickened by the demands of a daily paper. A true Philosopher should never be connected with anything more rapid than a weekly journal. He should have plenty of time for deliberation and ratiocination. We have sometimes thought that if we only evoluted once a week, so to speak, we would paralyze the Sages themselves with the profundity of our thought.

WHAT has become of the officeseekers? They seem to have left Washington for a cheaper boarding place.—[N. Y. Tribune.

They only fell back to secure supplies. Now that the machine has commenced grinding out commissions again they will all be found at the front.

PERSONAL.

—The late Gen. Upton left the larger part of his estate, valued at $30,000, to his sister, Miss Sarah Upton, of Batavia, N. Y.

—Mr. James Gordon Bennett, it is announced by the Whitehall Review, is engaged to marry the daughter of the Prince de Furstenberg.

—Ex.-Senator Hamlin went to two balls at Bangor last week, dancing to the end of the programme with great nimbleness and enjoyment.

—The new Czar is surrounded by six cordons of soldiers, and never goes outside the first one. He will not give any garden parties this summer.

—Queen Victoria, it is reported, is going to Italy in June, accompanied by her son Leopold, whose delicate health is giving rise to apprehension.

—It is still asserted that Carl Schurz is to take the editorship of our comatose contemporary, the New York Post. If Mr. Schurz needs rest, here is a fine chance.

—Mr. Holman Hunt with his sinewy, well-knit figure of middle height, his luxuriant hair and auburn beard, still has the appearance of a young man, but of one prematurely worn, as if parched with desert heats and toilsome travels.

—The National Republican says that the exposure of Brady is "brutal." Mr. Brady owns the National Republican, and the boys around the office have decided not to go back on the old man as long as salaries are paid promptly every Saturday.

—Mr. Fred Grant, the oldest son of the ex President, will take the Presidency of the Narrow Guage Railroad Company, a road projected from Houston to Presidio del Norte, a distance of 660 miles. Forty-two miles, from Houston to Patterson, are now in operation.

—Mrs. Farragut, the widow of the Admiral, is described as full of life and animation. She is of medium hight, and has brown hair, a plump face, and tender eyes. She is devoted to the memory of her husband, and never tires of telling of his noble deeds and traits of character.

The Awful "Masher."

ST. LOUIS, May 5, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am glad to see the stand you have taken against the "Masher" and the pretty young man. You are engaged in a good work. Keep it up until we shall be freed of those obnoxious fellows. Be they rich or poor, they are not only a nuisance, but a disgrace to a civilized community. If your cable is not sufficient to yank them off our streets, the aid of the policeman, with his club, should be called upon. If they have no other stopping place than that they now monopolize, and can find no other amusement than staring ladies out of countenance and obstructing sidewalks, let them be sent to the rock pile until they can make up their minds to seek more suitable quarters.

MERCHANT.

A Final Settler.

ST. LOUIS, May 4, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You correct the G.-D. to-day for interpreting the symbol "@" as "and," very kindly informing it that the meaning is "at." Now, is it not a fact that the true meaning is "to" and that it is used in giving the range of prices?" COMMERCIAL.

The symbol comes from the French word "a," and strictly means "at," though it is used to signify "to." Webster gives both definitions.—[ED. P.-D.

The River's Rate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I wish that you would please inform me at what rate the water in the river is running in its present stage? By so doing you will settle a dispute. A SUBSCRIBER.

The main current is running now at a fraction less than six miles an hour. The ordinary rate is about three and a half miles per hour. —ED. P.-D.

A Great Man's Birth-Place.

ST. LOUIS, May 4, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please answer in to-morrow's P.-D. the following question: Is Billy Emerson a St. Louis boy—meaning was he born and bred in the city? T. J. B.

Mr. Emerson's name is Redmon and he is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. Billy Rice is not a native of St. Louis, either.—[ED. P.-D.

Highly Probable.

From the Kansas City Times.

Some of the 2x4 prints in Missouri are predicting that the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH will be an out-and-out Republican paper in less than three months. We do not entertain any such fear. If the counsel of the POST-DISPATCH had been heeded last March, the city administration of St. Louis would have continued Democratic. In this connection the prediction may be safely made that most of the 2x4 prints that are now reviling the POST-DISPATCH'S independent Democracy will be in the hands of the Sheriff in less than three months.

Great Godfrey!

From the Courier-Journal.

Railroaders gave General Grant a banquet in the City of Mexico, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs gave the toast, "General Grant, the Great, Good and Tried Friend of Mexico." Great Goodness!

An Awful Responsibility.

From the Chicago Times.

It's an awful responsibility that rests upon the Democrats—that of keeping Riddleberger out of the emoluments of the Sergeantcy of the Senate. The poor fellow may be an orphan, too.

Brady's Stink Bag.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

There may be, as General Brady elegantly puts it, "pole-cats of the press," but it must be admitted that General Brady has supplied the contents of the stink-bag.

In Need of Reform.

A MOVEMENT has been started upon the floor of the Cotton Exchange to get an ocean steamer up to St. Louis to load for Liverpool. Nearly half a cargo was guaranteed in a quarter of an hour, and there will be no difficulty in getting the balance. It is thought that the City of Dundee, now at New Orleans, will be telegraphed for and will make the trip.

A VERY pleasant incident occurred at the regular weekly drill of Company G, of the National Guards last evening. While in line and executing the manual of arms Lieut. Murfee stepped forward and in a few well chosen words presented Captain F. S. Lawrence expressed his thanks as well as his surprise would permit.

THE Young Men's Christian Association will celebrate their fifth anniversary at their building on Eleventh and Locust streets this evening, and no pains have been spared to make the occasion one of great interest. Peebles, sopranos; altos; Mrs. Mattie Ingram Hardy and Miss Nellie Uhl; bassos, Messrs. A. D. Cunningham and D. F. Colville; Mr. T. C. Doan, tenor, and Prof. Henry Hanchett, organist. They will render some of the choicest music. The speeches of the evening will be by Rev. Drs. Ganse and Boyd, while other ministers will participate in brief devotional exercises.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Interesting Discussion Thereon by the Unitarian Divines.

Third Day's Session of the Conference at the Church of the Messiah.

The annual meeting of the Western Unitarian Sunday School Society, held in connection with the Western Conference, convened this morning at Dr. Snyder's Church, in this city. At 9:45 o'clock Rev. J. C. Learned, President of the Society, called the meeting to order. The attendance of delegates was good, and an excellent spirit was manifested. Mr. Shippin gave the clergymen warning that their speeches must be brief and pointed in order to give abundant time for the musical part of the exercises.

The President said that he was happy to meet so goodly a number of Sunday School workers, but as the time was limited he would not detain the meeting with lengthy remarks.

In concluding he said: "We are come together to decide whether we want Sunday Schools at all. It has been insisted that they encroach upon the rights of the Church. But without waiting to discuss that matter now, I will call upon T. L. Hosmer, our Secretary, to read the minutes of our last regular meeting."

The Secretary then read a report from the meeting held at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, May, 1880, and also a statistical report for the current year. He said that forty circulars had been sent to various schools throughout the West, and from the twenty-two replies received he reports that the number of scholars in the Sabbath School remains nearly the same as reported last year, with, however, a slight increase. The total number of children enrolled amounts in the aggregate to 2,417, 1,161 being girls and 1,351 boys. There is an average of one teacher to every nine scholars; the number of lady teachers largely exceeding the male. The Church of the Messiah heads the list with its Sunday School of 350 children. In six of the twenty-two schools sending in reports there are held weekly teacher's meetings; in three a meeting every two weeks, while in many there are none. The Secretary, while he did not deem any arbitrary doctrinal lesson helps desirable, advocated the idea of some general uniformity in the lessons taught, and a centralizing and utilizing of the independent, and individual thoughts and efforts.

Some Sunday School aids are now published by J. L. Jones, at Chicago, but nothing like a uniform system has yet been generally adopted. For their song services the "Sunny Side" and "Unity Services and Songs" are used. Twelve schools have choristers and one a choir. The Little Unity is an attractive four-paged paper, published at the office of the "Unity" at Chicago. The contents of the May number is arranged under the following heads: What to See, What to Do, The Sunday School and What to Read. It is issued fortnightly, and while not exclusively a Sunday School paper it aims to reach the thought corners of the child's brain, and to move the springs of endeavor in the child's heart.

The discussion of the lesson side of the Sunday School was opened by Rev. J. H. Cropper, of Laporte, Indiana. He said that the object of the Sunday School was to bring out the truth. The Sunday-school lesson must differ from the week-day school. It teaches history, but in addition it develops the moral worth and conduct value of truth. A uniformity in lessons in various schools is very desirable, but to put upon a uniform lesson in the different grades of the same school is not at all feasible. Indeed it cannot be accompanied with good results. We try to teach too much. The skillful lawyer argues a single salient point before the jury. So should the Sunday School teacher do The lesson leaves which we now have are too diffuse. Parents leave the moral training of their children to the Sunday School teacher and this is a great misfortune. The ordinary orthodox Sunday Schools have been instrumental in driving away children from Sunday training.

Rev. C. W. Wenty, of Cincinnati, differed from Rev. Mr. Crooker. He thought it was a general spirit of skepticism, now so prevalent, and not the Sunday Schools, that was working the evil. He thought that trained teachers ought to be provided for the Sabbath School, and that it might be easily accomplished, especially in cities and villages. He lamented the carelessness of our public schools in the matter of morals.

Mr. Glascow, of Marietta, thought that a Normal School was too remote to be seriously considered now, but that a uniform series of lesson-leaves would relieve the present embarrassment. A good teacher is not bound by a single system, but has tact enough to adapt himself to the circumstances which he meets.

Secretary Hosmer offered some suggestions sent him from Cincinnati by Mrs. Smith. She asked it the strong desire of the Unitarian Sunday School to have the child grow up with mind clear, broad and untrammeled, has not the effect to make them careless of the great truths which should be cherished.

Rev. J. C. Learned protested that this carelessness cannot justly be traced to the Sunday School. Outside influences must be taken into account.

Mr. Roice said that he never wished to see a professional Sunday School teacher enter a school. He commended responsive services, bright songs and the careful inculcation of the fundamental doctrine of immortality and the being of God. The Sunday School should be a place of entertainment, a pleasant, cheerful place.

Mrs. J. T. Sunderland, of Ann Arbor, replied that trained teachers were absolutely necessary to success. The Sunday School must be an earnest place, not a place of amusement. The children desire to know of the great eternal truths, and we need to make them understand that religion is the great thing in the world.

Rev. T. B. Forbush, of Detroit, thought that the system of instruction in Germany and the notorious skepticism of the Germans contain a lesson which the advocates of cultured religion and professional teachers would do well to consider and explain. The Sabbath School is a necessary evil. Too frequently the child goes out of the Sabbath School and does not return to the church. We separate the family in its worship, which is to be regretted.

Mr. Bouser, mission pastor of the Church of the Messiah, spoke earnestly in favor of teachers' meetings, to be conducted by the pastors.

The discussion of the worship side of the Sabbath School was introduced by J. L. Jones of Chicago. He said that the worship in the Sabbath School ought to be the link riveting the S. S. with the Church. We ought to recognize the fact that every topic has its baby and its grandfather side. Lesson papers should be of minimum importance in the school and maximum importance out. Impress the minds of the children with the existence of God, of Jesus, and of eternity. Do not try to teach too much about things, but make the children thoughtful, careful and attentive. Quiet attention will lift the children into the atmosphere of pure devotion. Simple services are most desirable. A few good songs are better than a large number of poor ones. The flippant and conventional words use of words that ought never to be uttered without the greatest reverence, is a thing much to be regretted. Happy seriousness, and cheerful earnestness are the things that ought to grow up in the childs mind.

Several delegates followed in a general discussion of the subject.

The Relation of the Sunday School to the Church, and The Work and Needs of the Western Sunday School were discussed during the afternoon, each being introduced by a fifteen minute speech, and followed by general remarks.

The adjourned meetings of the Woman's Auxilary Conference and Ministers' Consultation were continued at 2 o'clock, after which the future plans of the Conference were discussed.

The platform meetings, with short addresses from laymen and others will occur at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The Collapsed World's Fair.

NEW YORK, May 5.—There can be no further disguising the fact that the World's Fair project is as good as dead and that the scheme will soon be brought to a close. The most suitable method of closing the work of the commission is under consideration and will soon be reported for action. The conditional and unconditional subscriptions will not foot up over $1,000,000. The money received will be returned to the subscribers.

Felker dry goods; James Kinman and Lucinda Hazleton, dwellings; Deffendahl Bros., confectionery; P. H. Gartner, store; Wm. Fellows, shoe store; Myers, butcher shop, and H. K Wells, two buildings. Total loss, $50,000; insurance, $15,000.

The Jay Cooke Estate.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 5.—An adjourned public sale of the effects of the Jay Cooke estate took place to-day. The sale of Western lands and the country seat, "Ogontz," were disposed of, the limit on the latter having been reduced to $100,000, and the sale effected after a lively competition at $113,500. It is understood it was purchased for Jay Cooke.

Carl Schurz a Railroad President.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Carl Schurz, ex-Secretary of the Interior, was in town to-day. It having been rumored that Schurz was to be offered the presidency of the Northern Pacific, a reporter asked him if it was true. He replied he would see the representative of the press this evening on the subject.

Death of a Ventriloquist.

BOSTON, May 5.—Prof. Jonathan Harrington, the celebrated ventriloquist, died suddenly at his residence, Revere, Mass., last night.

CRAIG'S CIRCULAR.

The Comprehensive Office-Seeker From St. Joseph.

Garfield's Distribution of Federal Patronage in Missouri.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Missourians are getting some recognition from the new Administration. A. B. Castleman has settled down to work in the Pension Bureau. Wm. T. Sullivan, who was given a clerkship in the same department, has moved his family to Washington. Ford Smith, of St. Louis, who received an appointment in the Pension Office, has declined it on the ground that his business made it necessary for him to remain in St. Louis. The vacancy goes to a lawyer from St. Joseph. Philip Arnholt, of the last mentioned place, has been made Route Agent on the Lexington and St. Joe Railroad. Not so fortunate was Corydon F. Craig of that city. His tactics have made him the victim of a good many jokes, and have revived the old story of the man who went to President Jackson for a cabinet position, and finally came down to an old suit of clothes. Craig has been sending around to prominent Republicans, with whom he had any acquaintance, the following:

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

DEAR SIR—Being very busy at present, and desiring to send the same communication to a number of my friends, I have thought best to send out a general letter-circular in order to save time.

I leave for Washington City this week, and I am very anxious that you do me the following favor:

If you believe me worthy of the favor, please draw up a general letter of commendation, stating what you know of my Republicanism, general ability, and particularly what you know of the manner in which I conducted the taking of the late census in this district.

Then get the prominent men in your vicinity to sign this letter, and should you secure any officials, request them to affix their official titles to their names. I would be glad if you would also get a few individual letters of recommendation from the most prominent gentlemen in your community.

The position I seek is that of Local Mail Agent at this point (an office not yet established here). You will therefore please have all letters addressed to the Hon. First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, D. C., but mail them all to me at Washington, care of Willard's Hotel.

Let the letters be short and to the point, but as strong as you can consistently make them.

While I desire that you inform all whom you request to sign this letter what position I seek, I would prefer that you do not recommend me for that particular position but make the recommendation general, so that if I fail in that the letters would be of some avail should I decide to ask for some other appointment.

If you can do me this favor I shall be very grateful, and be only too glad of an opportunity to reciprocate. Faithfully, your friend.

Several of these letters reached Washington and were shown to the newspaper men. The story got into general circulation and Craig's stay here was neither lengthy nor pleasant. He went back to Missouri, and the last heard from him was that he was at the St. Joe Opera House. Craig has figured prominently in Missouri Republican Conventions. He was one of the last census supervisors.

Judge Sands, of Kirksville, fails to make connection with an Indian Agency.

Judge George P. Huckerly has been appointed postmaster at Rich Hill, in Bates county. He is the editor of the Rich Hill Gazette.

There has been something of a push made for the pension office at St. Louis. Capt. La Tourette has been here about it. He visited Garfield at Mentor last summer. The commission of the present incumbent does not expire for some time. The office is looked upon as a fat one, and there will be several claimants for it.

Shelby's appointment to the Governorship of New Mexico puts an end to the talk about Gov. Tom Fletcher in that connection. Senator Sherman, it is said, will oppose Sheridon's confirmation because of alleged treachery at the Chicago Convention, but this will not prevent confirmation.

Chauncey I. Filley's friends deny positively that he has had any designs on the Second Assistant Postmaster-Generalship or the Assistant Secretaryship of the Interior.

A recent applicant for the Sedalia Post Office is Capt. Ritter of that place. Jackson, of Sedalia, is after an Indian agency.

There are six appointments of Missourians hanging fire in the Senate, those made for Postmasters at Palmyra, Columbia and Rolla, for Receiver of Public Moneys at Ironton and for Collectors of Internal Revenue in the Fifth and Sixth Districts, with headquarters at Springfield and Kansas City, respectively.

Congressman Rice, of Missouri, has been trying to effect the removal of some obnoxious Democrats in his district, but so far has made no headway.

STOCK SPECULATION.

The Fever Set In Again on the New York Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Post says: Stock speculation has not been so active and booming for many months as it is now. An enormous "short interest" had been formed in the market. The covering of this, or beginning to cover it, started prices upwards, and the advance had hardly got well under way before the public began buying and outsiders are now competing for the stock in market with those who had sold stocks short, and who are therefore at present compulsory buyers. This is the situation at the moment, and with the outlook for money stranger things have happened than a raging wild speculation during the next two or three months. The same, of course, is to be accompanied with the usual reaction. When British consols are selling at 102 and U. S. 4s at 113, which in both cases is a good deal on account of the very easy money, it must be admitted that important conditions are favorable for speculation, and yet prices are very high and influences are at work in the way of building rural railroads, which in the fullness of time, perhaps a year hence, can not fail to affect seriously some of the properties whose shares are prominent in the present speculation. The bulls in the market insist that higher priced dividend paying stocks are very scarce, and small orders to buy them at current prices frequently make the market a bear. Chicago and Alton advanced 5 per cent yesterday on an order to buy 500 shares.

A Street Explosion.

NEW YORK, May 5.—This afternoon five cases of giant powder, containing 500 pounds, exploded on the side walk in front of 207 East Fifty-ninth street. Half the houses on the block were shaken but no damage was done and no person was hurt. The affair caused the wildest excitement on the east side. No cause is given for the explosion.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Samuel D. Babcock was elected president.

Knights Templar Drill.

LOUISVILLE, May 5.—At a meeting of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar, Louisville No. 1 defeated DeMalay No. 12 in the drill for the prize. The latter commandery captured the second prize in the national meeting at Chicago last year.

John P. Young, pioneer citizen, died in this city to-day, aged ninety-one. He came to Louisville from New Jersey and was among the first early builders and contractors to locate here.

Theological Graduates.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—The Lane Theological Seminary graduated thirteen students to-day. Five of them were graduates of Ohio Colleges, one of a Massachusetts College, one graduated at a Kentucky College and six graduated at Indiana Colleges.

Foundered at Sea.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The steamer Belsize from New Orleans for Copenhagen foundered at sea. The crew was saved.

THE sale of the remaining assets of the estate of John F. Darby for the benefit of creditors took place to-day at the Court House steps. Judge Lanham officiated for Assignee Fisse. There was a large attendance of speculators. The only notable purchases were as follows: The Caswell lead mine, Franklin county, sold for $3,000 to a syndicate composed of Samuel Knox, Wm. F. Causey, James E. Withrow, S. W. Buckner and Henry Stellbrink; 640 acres of the Jessie Benton grant sold for $1,125 to Jacob Klein.

Sheep	272	386	800	495

CATTLE—Butcher cattle were selling well this forenoon, and the moderate supply changed hands promptly at the moderate prices prevailing on yesterday. Common mixed native and southwest butchers' stuff scarce and wanted. Shipping steers in liberal supply and slow of disposal, from the fact that the high water has encroached upon many road beds and thus preventing the running of trains. Shippers were willing to operate, and some did make purchases and paid strong prices therefor. Stock and feeding steers were in demand, and none offered. Milch cows with calves slow. Ruling quotations steady. Perhaps shipping steers will be selling slightly lower this afternoon.

HOGS—Offerings fair and of all grades, but the market was slow and gravitating to dullness, from the fact that shippers could not send out their purchases, and therefore were holding back. A few shippers entered the market, likewise local butchers, and bought at slight declines. Values slow. Yorkers and Baltimores $3 80@5 90; mixed packing $5 75@6 00; butcher and select $6 15@6 40; pigs of 120 to 150 lbs $5 00@5 40.

The Appointment of Elliot C. Jewett.

Elliot C. Jewett, who has been nominated by President Garfield as assayer at the branch assay office to be established in St. Louis, is a son of D. T. Jewett. The appointment does notgo into effect until the 1st of July. Young Jewett is now at Leadville, and has been engaged there practically in the line of his profession for some time. There were several other applicants for the position, including a Louisiana man, who was warmly urged by Gov. Foster, of Ohio.

"IT is above all controversy a most remarkable medicine," says Stacey Hill, Esq., of the Mt. Auburn Inclined Plane Railway, Cincinnati. "I was limping about, hardly able to move, with rheumatism in the hip or sciatica. Hearing of St. Jacobs Oil, I procured a bottle of it, and with the third application was able to go about with perfect ease and comfort."

A Sensational Rumor.

THE SOUTHERN STREET LINE.

Lively Controversy Concerning the Use of Decatur Street.

Circuit Court No. 5 is filled to-day with presidents and officers of street railroad corporations, contractors, lawyers and others, including Citizen Fink, interested in the conflict-triangular between the Union Depot or Gravois Railroad Company, the St. Louis Railroad Company or Fifth Street Line, and the South St. Louis Company. The hearing to-day has reference to the proceeding of the Union Depot Company seeking an injunction to restrain the South St. Louis Company from interfering in any way with the Decatur Street track. The Court has recently passed upon the question of condemning this property, taking the ground that it cannot interfere and ordering the condemnation proceeding to be dismissed. Judge Thayer holds that the South St. Louis Company has the power under ordinance to construct an independent track of its own, but it cannot use the track of the Union Depot Company. In other words, the Court points to the Municipal Assembly as the proper quarter for the South St. Louis Company to seek relief in respect of the use of Decatur street for its line of road. The officers of the South St. Louis road contend that compliance with the law would be had if they placed new lines for their cars running "between the metals" of the Union Depot Company on Decatur street. The effect of such an arrangement would be of course disastrous to the cars of either line and collisions would ensue. As there is no hope of any arrangement being concluded for the use of this track the Court has an ugly problem to solve. At the hearing to-day the Fifth Street Line takes a side seat, but it is warmly interested in another phase of the warfare against the South St. Louis Company, the officers of the St. Louis Company contending that the recent act of the Legislature did not operate to repeal the parallel-block monopoly act of 1860, and it was not passed according to the constitutional requirement, after amendment in the Senate. The residents of the southern portion of the town are much incensed at the vexatious, obstructive litigation of the Fifth Street Line and Gravois Road Line, which prevents the cars running to Sixth and Market streets, although everything is in readiness.

WHAT HE WANTED OF GOULD.

The Man Who Asked for Connection With the Great Financier.

A well-to-do citizen of sober aspect walked in to the Western Union Telegraph Office last evening and after busying himself at the desk for ten minutes turned to the receiving clerk and asked:

"Can you reach Mr. Gould to night?"

The tone implied business of grave importance, and the clerk with manifest interest and deference, inquired:

"You mean Mr. Jay Gould, sir?"

"Yes, sir."

"I don't know, sir; I will see, however," and the clerk with alacrity began a series of efforts to locate the great financier. The sober citizen had resumed his work on a message at the desk with his back to the clerk, and when he had let the latter exert himself sufficiently, he called out quietly:

"If you get connection with Mr. Gould I wish you would just ask him if the St. Louis office can't be supplied with some decent pens."

The clerk came back to the counter with an injured look on his face, while the waiting messengers in the back room snickered in chorus.

Conflict Over a Child.

Ida May Sechler, a bright, interesting little child, was brought into Court this morning before Judge Thayer under a writ of habeas corpus for which the petition was presented in behalf of the mother. The child has been in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, at a farm in Washington county, Mo., having been placed there by Mr. and Mrs. Roedereck, of this city, to whom a deed of gift was executed for the little girl by her father and mother. There were domestic differences which led to Mrs. Sechler, the mother, going into the divorce court, where she obtained a decree and the custody of her children. Being unable, however, to rear and educate them properly, the little girl was taken off her hands by the Roedeckers, the father consenting. The mother now desires to recover the possession and control of her children, and Judge Thayer has fixed Saturday, May 14, for a full hearing on both sides. The child, meanwhile, will remain with the Roedeckers.

A HIGH WATER FATALITY.

Telegraph Operator Foster Meets Death in the Submerged District.

A young telegraph operator named Charles Foster was fatally injured north of East St. Louis this morning. He was sent to Venice last night to take charge of the office. This morning he started down to East St. Louis on foot to get his breakfast. The high water forced him to take to the railroad tracks. When about half below Venice he met a train coming northward, and stepped across on the Chicago and Alton track, not observing that the Kansas City Express was coming down behind him. The pilot struck him almost as soon he had put his foot on the tracks and hurled him twenty feet. The train was stopped, and the mangled form, still animate, was put in the baggage car and brought to this side. From the Union Depot he was taken, more dead than alive, to the City Hospital, and died there within an hour after being received. Foster was only eighteen years of age. His parents live at Jerseyville and he came from there only a few months ago. A telegram was sent to the family to Jerseyville and the father arrived here to-day to take charge of the remains. It was an accident for which nobody could be held accountable.

Annual Conference of the Grand Chapter in Session.

This morning at 9 o'clock at the Masonic Temple, Seventh and Market streets, the Missouri Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons began its annual session. Dr. James E. Cadle, of Chillicothe, Grand High Priest of State, delivered the opening address. The attendance of delegates was very large, not less than one hundred being present, or three from each chapter, and, asiae from this, there were a number of attendants from the city chapters, so that the whole number attending will probably foot up to 175. The morning session was entirely devoted to business of a private nature. At 10:30 o'clock the meeting adjourned, and again resumed its labors, which will be continued until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when ballots will be cast for the election of new state officers. To-night the visitors will attend several of the local chapters and lodges.
